Crop production in the state this year aggregates in quantity about 17 per cent more than last year. Prices on December 1 average eight per cent lower than a year ago, making total value of crop production, on this basis, about eight per cent less than last year.

OLD-TIME REMEDY MAKES PURE BLOOD

Hood's Sarsaparilla has been and still is the people's medicine because of its reliable character and its wonderful success in purifying, enriching and revitalizing the blood and relieving the common diseases and ailments—scrofula, catarrh, rheumatism, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, that tired feeling, general debility.

Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies and enriches the blood, and in so doing renders the human system the greatest service possible. This medicine has been tested for years. It is perfectly pure, clean and absolutely safe, as well as of peculiar and unequalled medicinal merit.

than 30 guests, virtually all of whom were relatives. They left soon afterward for a two weeks' honeymoon in the south, at Hot Springs, Va.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the President and Mrs. Wilson entered a waiting White House automobile and motored to Alexandria, Va., across the Potomac, to take their private car there and avoid a crowd at the railroad station in this city.

Evening Cool and Pleasant.
The president dined as usual at the White House at 7 o'clock, with his daughters and afterward drove to his bride's home, about a mile from the executive mansion. A cold, driving rain, which swept the city all day, cleared off at sunset and the evening was cool and pleasant.

Because of the wedding arrangements and the hour of the ceremony had been kept a close secret, there were few on the streets about the White House, but near the bride's home the crowd was held back by police lines spread during the afternoon.

Ceremony is Without Music.

Everything was in readiness for the ceremony when the president arrived and it proceeded without music. Neither the president nor Mrs. Galt had any attendants and there were no ushers or flower girls. Neither the army, the navy nor the diplomatic corps was represented and the occasion was essentially what both had wished it to be—a home wedding.

doled sales with their holdings. The sales for the past two weeks are few and far between and the price ranges about 10 cents per pound. The association claims, however, to have received better offers than this but are not disposed to sell until the price of 15 cents is offered and perhaps not then if the market appears to be on the up grade.

Hope to Realize $1,000,000 By Holding Their Hops

Willamette Valley hop growers expect to realize $1,000,000 from their hops now unsold, by holding until May 1, 1916, and have voted to extend the contract four months. The present contract of the growers in the Oregon Hop Growers' association was to expire December 31 but at a meeting held last week in several sections of the country all of the growers agreed to extend the contracts for four months or until the price of 15 cents per pound is realized.

Secretary Clark reports today that a number of hop growers who did not come into the association earlier in the year are now asking to enter and that they will increase the pool several hundred

Stock Market Shows Some Slight Advances

New York, Dec. 20.—Higher prices ruled on the exchange today in spite of a decided falling off in speculative interest. The Christmas spirit apparently is affecting business.

During the morning there was moderate activity, representing execution of orders delayed by Saturday's storm. Otherwise business typically of holiday changes, with activity lessening toward the close.

Nevertheless, a number of substantial advances were registered by industrial stocks. Railroads were almost neglected.

Chicago Firm Would Take 50 Carloads of Onions
Can money be made raising onions? The average farmer would probably say yes, and then put in a check against raising them by saying there was no market.

Manager O. H. Luck, of the Commercial club, in taking up the proposition of markets, wrote one of the largest commission houses in Chicago, Coyne Bros., 119 West South Water street, as to whether they were in the market for onions. By return mail a reply was received stating the firm was in the market for from 25 to 50 car loads of Willamette valley onions, and that each community having a supply should mail samples.

This is a chance for quick action on the part of communities having several car loads to ship. The Coyne Bros. is a responsible firm, and will buy in large quantities but do not want any one or two car shipments. This seems to settle the question of markets, as far as the raising of onions is concerned.

County School Supts. Meet Here to Correct Examination Papers

The county school superintendents of this state began coming into the office of the state school superintendent today to act upon the examination board which will correct the papers handed in by the teachers who took the recent state teachers' examinations. With the exception of a few from the counties in far eastern Oregon all were on hand this morning. The others are expected to arrive tonight and the examination work will begin at once.

At this time it is expected that some special work of interest to school superintendents and teachers will be given under the direction of Superintendent Churchill. The following superintendents will compose the examining board:

J. F. Smith, Baker; R. E. Cannon, Corvallis; J. E. Calavan, Oregon City; O. H. Ryland, Astoria; J. W. Allen, Saint Helens; R. E. Baker, Coquille; J. E. Myers, Prineville; G. W. Smith, Gold Beach; O. DO THIS FIRST—YOU!

You know, and every physician knows, that when any sickness has passed, whether it be throat trouble, organic disturbances, contagious diseases, or even a severe cold, a relapse is feared, because sickness robs the system of Nature's resistance and leaves it subject to lingering germs.

Drugs never build up a worn-out body—only food can do that, and the first thing to take after any sickness is the concentrated, blood-making oil-food in Scott's Emulsion, which feeds the tissues, benefits the blood and strengthens both lungs and throat.

Physicians prescribe Scott's Emulsion after sickness. Nurses everywhere advocate it. Scott's is pure medicinal food, without alcohol or drugs.

New Switch Board for Lighting Opera House

The trustees of the Odd Fellows' building have been instructed to secure a new switch board for the entire lighting system of the opera house, to take the place of the present wood and asbestos switch board which was installed when the building was erected in 1906.

The new switch board will be four feet wide and five feet high, on slate one and one-half inches thick, supported on an angle iron frame. It will be equipped with the latest manufacture of switches to take care of the 48 branch circuits. These 48 switches will give that number of combinations of light.

The stage lighting includes five board lights. These are of five different circuits with colors of white, red or blue and will be controlled by a master switch by which all can be turned off or on at one time.

The wiring of the opera house will be entirely overhauled. All wires will be placed in metal conduits, as approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters. Architect F. A. Legg has been instructed to draw up plans and specifications for the new system, which will be installed early in January.

Young Electricians SHOULD NOT FOLLOW ADVICE IN FICTION

Simple Experiment May Lead Them to Tap the Wrong Wire—Ouch—Dead

Youthful electricians are warned not to follow diagrams given in stories in popular magazines relative to electrical experiments as they are likely to seize the wrong wire sometime and then—some slow music that Willie won't hear.

A story appeared last week in a magazine of national circulation which told how wires might be tapped and messages sent out in the Morse code over electric light wires. Diagrams were given and any youthful electrician might be tempted to try it once anyway. Since the amateur is as likely to get hold of a wire carrying 20,000 volts as he is to tap an incandescent circuit of 110 volts the Public Service commission engineers have issued a statement relative to the case.

The article entitled "The Third Light," purports to convey certain information based upon practical electrical standards and practices. In this, however, it is in error, as there appears a drawing of equipment and circuit arrangement which is misleading and not in conformity to the thought expressed by the writer of the article.

The dangers surrounding an experiment of this kind by the amateur electrician are many.

The general regulations governing overhead and underground construction of the Public Service commission of Oregon, Section 14, require the grounding of all neutral wires of low potential (secondary) distributing systems, and, where the neutral is not accessible, the grounding of one wire of the secondary or commercial lighting or power circuit. These regulations became effective October 1, 1913, and previous to that date a great many installations of transformers with secondary (110-220 and other voltages) lighting and power circuits had been installed without ground connections. Therein lies the real danger to the youthful experimenter, for, should and ungrounded transformer secondary or house lighting wire be used to make the "Third Light" experiment, and the transformer be faulty or leaky, the person making the experiment might receive the full 2200 volt current, the result of which would be the maiming for life if not the instant death of the experimenter.

Wiring conditions in Oregon are such that the experimenter would not unless it were made in some locality where the transformer secondaries or low potential distributing wires are not grounded.

The principle involved in the "Third Light" experiment while it appears intricate, is very simple, and is nothing more than the substituting of a ground connection for the middle conductor of a circuit of two lights in series. It is therefore obvious that such an experiment can be made with batteries and small electric lights, such as are found in "flash lights" and without the inherent dangers surrounding experimenting with the house lighting wires, whether they are properly grounded or not.

Experimenting with commercial or residence lighting wires is not conducive to the success of the "Safety First" movement, and it is strongly recommended that such experiments be left to the advanced students or professor and be not attempted by the amateur.

"Avenge Conscience" At Oregon Next Week

"Avenge Conscience" is my supreme achievement. It is a greater picture than my "Birth of a Nation." It is two years ahead of its time.

So writes D. W. Griffith of his masterpiece in six reels, which will be at the Oregon theater next Monday and Tuesday.

In the picture is perhaps the most notable cast ever assembled in any one picture, including: Blanche Sweet, Henry B. Walthall, Mae Marsh, Robert Harron, Ralph Lewis, George Sigman, Josephine Crowell and Spottiswoode Aitken—in fact, the entire cast of "The Birth of a Nation," with the addition of Miss Sweet.

The state rights for the picture are owned by Orton E. Goodwin and Sol Baum, who outbid all other agents in obtaining the picture. It is declared to be the most costly picture ever shown in this city.

In addition to its week's run at the Heilig Theatre, Portland, "Avenge Conscience," broke all attendance records at the Strand Theatre, New York, where the manager declared it was the greatest picture ever in his house. At Seattle, the Melodrama Theatre showed it to greater throngs than saw "The Birth of a Nation" in that city.

The wonders of film production have been taxed in producing "Avenge Conscience," and it is for this reason that Mr. Griffith declares it is two years ahead of the day. From many standpoints it marks an entirely new era in motion picture photography.

The showing of "Avenge Conscience" in Salem will be a notable one.

A Journal New Today will convert waste into wealth.
